Emergency and evacuation signage is a challenge that had long been awaiting a solution.

Both regulations and common sense require all buildings to be signposted though, unfortunately, the standard alternatives that the marked provides are far from satisfactory, both in terms of the basic materials used and their rather impersonal icons.

In fact, signposting a space according to the regulations ends up being a threat to aesthetics and good taste.

Whit that premise, we at Signes have developed and manufactured a category A (*) typology of emergency and evacuation signage which while complying with current regulations (**) has a much better design at a competitive price.

We know that they were not difficult to improve, but we are happy with the outcome.

The materials, finishes, better honed colours, and the association with typographer Andreu Balius, who designed the DSIGNES typography and pictograms, all led to the final launch of this Signes product.

(*) CATEGORY A

High luminance photoluminescent products are the usual choice for signage and beacons in public places or where the lighting is predominantly artificial.

(**) REGULATIONS

UNE 23033-1:1981. Defines signage for fire protection (extinguishers, hose reels, outdoor hydrants, manual call points and release devices for extinguishing systems).

UNE 23034:1988. Defines signage for evacuation.

Photoluminescent signs must meet the requirements of UNE 23035-1:2003, UNE 23035-2:2003 and UNE 23035-4:2003.

MATERIALS AND FINISHES

Within the continuous commitment of SIGNES for good design and quality, we are proud to present our emergency signage product line, which gives premium solutions to elements that have traditionally had a lower category finish.

Our plates are made of 3 mm aluminum sheet painted with two-component polyurethane enamel, oven dried. Screen-printed graphics (class A) and UV matte varnish.

We offer three standard variations:

Aluminum plate only; aluminum plate with stainless steel passe-partout; Aluminum plate with black painted aluminum frame.

We can also manufacture any other customized solution, adapting to the needs of each project.
